Official Information Act request

Thank you for your request under the Official Information Act 1982 (OIA), which was partially transferred to Te Mana Whakaatu—the Classification Office by the Department of the Prime Minister and Cabinet (DPMC) on 27 January 2023.

You said:

I, [REDACTED], request the official information pertaining to the removal of library books from public libraries in New Zealand by Government order.

Please include authors & titles and quantities removed. Please also indicate what has happened to these books subsequent to their removal.

DPMC interpreted part of this request to include “a list of books that have been deemed or determined to be objectionable”, and transferred this part of the request to the Classification Office for response.

Response to your request

Information attached and publicly available elsewhere

A spreadsheet containing details of all books that have been banned in Aotearoa is attached. It can be opened in Microsoft Excel, and may open in Google Sheets or another spreadsheet application.

This spreadsheet is sorted alphabetically by title. When it is first opened, it will show all of the books which are currently banned in New Zealand. 18 additional books were banned when they were originally classified, but have since been reclassified as restricted or unrestricted. You can see which books have been reclassified by toggling the filter in the Current classification column.

Please note that the spreadsheet only contains physical (for example, bound) books which have been classified. It excludes digital books and text files that have been banned in New Zealand, some of which may also be available in print.

More information about each of the publications in the spreadsheet is publicly available on the Classification Office's register. This includes detailed reasons for classification decisions. The Office also supplies documents and information on the register on request. You can browse the register here.

Quantities of books banned

You will be able to see in the spreadsheet that 1214 publications were banned by the Indecent Publications Tribunal between 1 January 1964 and 30 September 1994. The Tribunal was replaced by the Classification Office when the Films, Videos, and Publications Classification Act was passed in 1993.

The Act also changed how books and other publications are classified. The Office classifies content by deciding whether it is objectionable, not whether it is indecent. This has meant that only 99 books have been banned since the Act took full effect on 1 October 1994. This includes three bans applied by the Film and Literature Board of Review. The Board classifies publications independently of the Office.

Reclassifying banned books

Between 1992 and 1993, the Indecent Publications Tribunal removed bans from 11 titles, instead making some of these titles restricted and some unrestricted.

All books which remain banned or restricted, either by the Tribunal or by the Classification Office, can be reconsidered by the Office through an application process. Following this process, the Office examines publications afresh. The Office then applies a new classification which can be the same, lower, or (in rare cases) higher than the previous classification.

It is unlikely that all of the books that were banned by the Tribunal would be banned by the Office today, given the change in classification law in 1993 and other factors such as the introduction of the New Zealand Bill of Rights Act in 1990.

Other information requested

The Classification Office does not hold information about quantities of banned books, or what has happened to copies of banned books, that libraries have removed. The Office does not instruct libraries to remove banned books from their catalogues. Libraries can however contact the Office for information on this topic.

The Office is an independent Crown entity. This means that while it is part of the wider state service, it does not classify publications, or perform any of its other functions, at the direction of elected government officials or public service departments.

Publication of response

This response may be published on the Classification Office's website. If it is published there, your personal information will be redacted.

Right of review

You have the right to make a complaint and seek a review by the Ombudsman of this response under section 28\(3\) of the OIA. Information about this process is available at ombudsman.parliament.nz or freephone 0800 802 602.

Thank you for your interest in our mahi.

Ngā mihi nui,
